Today is National Housing Day!
Every Ontarian deserves a safe, affordable place to call home. It's where families put down roots, build their futures and create lasting memories.
That's why our government is working closely with municipal and community partners to lower housing costs, remove barriers and get more homes built faster. We're focused on making the dream of homeownership more attainable while ensuring more Ontarians have access to the housing they need.
Together, we're building stronger communities, creating more opportunities for families and protecting the dream of homeownership for generations to come.

Rob Flack
Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister